

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 A semiconductor laser device includes an InP substrate and a multi-layered structure formed on the InP substrate, wherein the multi-layered structure includes at least a plurality of active regions for outputting a laser beam, and the plurality of active regions each are provided in each of a plurality of grooves dented toward the InP substrate.